RICHMOND HILL BARN THEATRE – GENESEO, ILLINOIS

Any Famous Last Words

a Dramey by Nancy Pahl Gilsenan

A Lucy, a famous and funny playwright, has been rushed to a hospital because, on the opening night of her latest play, a chicken bone hidden in an enchilada has lodged in her throat. It doesn't stop her talking, which is good because she has to deal with the insanity of hospital red tape -followed by minor surgery and a major anesthetic. As the anesthetic begins to take hold, Lucy starts to examine her life. Is she an artist, or is she a thief who steals the lives of real people to make her fiction?
